

Albuquerque Star Bulletin Wednesday, September 19, 1964

RETIRED Air Force General Benjamin Cassiday is vacationing in Wyoming, hunting antelope with old friend Chuck Yeager. While Gen. Cassiday is in the wilds, his son,

Ben Cassiday Jr., is in the midst of a controversy here over the Ronald Rewald case. Rewald wants to be represented by the federal public defender's office, but the government wants the whole office disqualified because Gen. Cassiday lost more than $40,000 in Rewald's company. . . . California winemaker Sam Sebastiani is planning another Isle visit next month to show off some of the new products bearing his signature. . . . Mel Durslag, sports columnist for the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner, not to mention TV Guide, is in town vacationing with his family. He was swapping old sports stories yesterday with longtime pal Hobe Duncan of the governor's office.
